

Bob Collins - US Chess Center Washington DC

Their program produces students who achieve academic success and distinguish good choices from bad. They teach children the rules, strategy, discipline and etiquette of the game and nearly every child in the program has completed high school by the age of 18. Two students have even become Rhodes Scholars.

Rick Calhoun - Face to Face

Hospitality, Mutuality and Transformation; the motto of Face to Face is brought to life by their dedicated volunteers. Struggling families, individuals and homeless are welcomed and treated with dignity and respect with the goal of meeting basic human needs, reducing suffering and assisting their guests to a better future.

Flo Bird - Sons of The American Legion Post 86

Founded in 1956, The Sons of the American Legion Squadron of Henderson-Smith-Edmonds Post 86 in Rockville, Maryland is a wonderful organization that benefits our community by helping local veterans by providing basic home maintenance, transportation, and other needs.

Frank Byskov - Children's Inn at NIH

The Inn provides a free, family-centered "place like home" as the children participate in groundbreaking research at NIH. While the NIH takes care of the children's medical needs, The Children's Inn tends to their social and emotional needs and find mutual support from families in similar circumstances.

Stephen Clagett - Warrior Canine Connection

WCC utilizes a Mission Based Trauma Recovery model which, with the help of foster families for the dogs, enables veterans to train service dogs which aids in their recovery from the stresses of battle. After two years of training, they are able to provide a service dog to a fellow disabled veteran.

David Clark - C.A.S.A

I continue to be inspired by C.A.S.A, a community volunteer program that ensures that one of our most vulnerable populations - abused and neglected children - have a voice in court, and ultimately a warm and loving place to live a fulfilling life. Their work is truly changing the lives of these children.

Sally Mullen - Just Lunch Poolesville

The Just Lunch Program addresses teenage hunger by offering lunch and a respite from the pressures of high school life to students in a local school every day it is in session. Unfortunately, many kids will choose hunger over the stigma of being "poor" which is why there is no charge and no means test for assistance.

Kristian Price - Lily's Hope

Lily, 16 years old, lives in New Market and is a family friend. Lily had been in remission with Ewing's Sarcoma, a form of bone cancer, for five years but unfortunately her cancer returned over the summer. Proceeds beyond Lily's treatments go towards additional cancer research and treatment for others.

Joseph Shanaphy - Chesapeake Bay Foundation

Well known for their "Save the Bay" motto, the Chesapeake Bay Foundation fights to protect the Chesapeake Bay, its tributaries, and the watershed fed by it from harmful pollution. They are also committed to the clean-up and restoration of the already damaged areas.

Jordan VanOort - Hearts & Homes for Youth

After being introduced and inspired by a highly respected client to learn more about this excellent organization, it was an easy and emotionally appealing decision to share this gift. Hearts & Homes for Youth clearly touches lives by providing the most essential human needs of love and care.

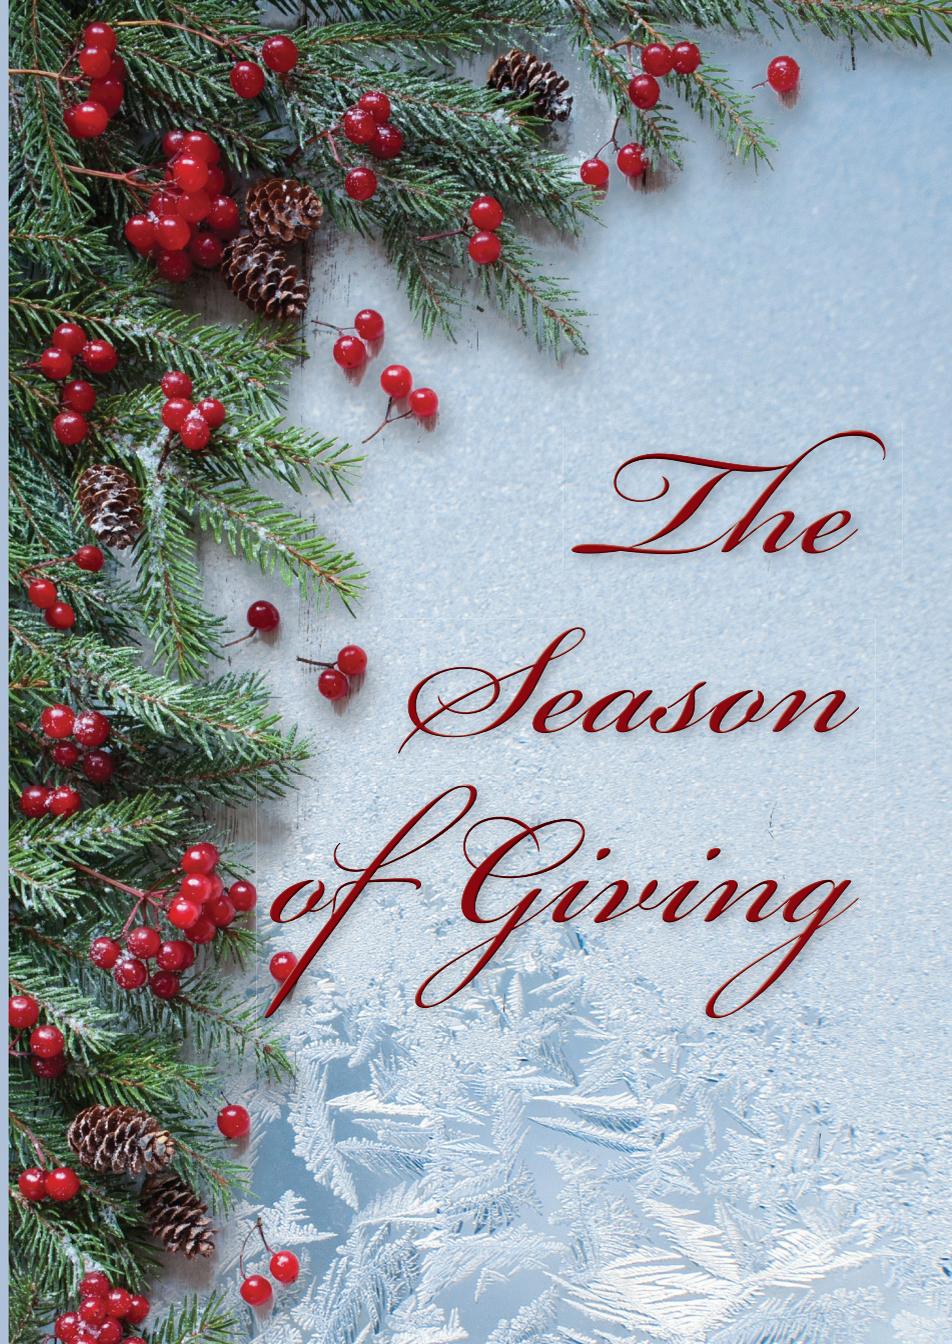

In our team's continued effort to have a positive impact on our community, each associate has elected to donate to an organization of their choice.

Every associate has a unique and meaningful affiliation with each charitable organization, and we welcome you to read about each and hope that it may inspire you to learn more about our charities.
